Highly motivated, passionate, goal-oriented, and driven are just a few words that describe David Viger. He is an individual who prides himself on overcoming adversity and he approaches any challenge with determination and hard work. As an executive in the homebuilding industry, he is a leader who builds solid relationships and empowers his people to “get things done.”

Mr. Viger attended the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland, where he played for the Navy football team and graduated with a Bachelor of Science. From there, he attended Surface Warfare School and joined the fleet as an Ensign in the United States Navy. Mr. Viger ended his naval career at the rank of Lieutenant. A celebrated record with the Navy football team ultimately led Mr. Viger to an unrestricted free agent career with the New York Jets. After his stint in the NFL, he was ready for a different kind of career.

Mr. Viger’s father had held various construction/homebuilding industry positions and David always had an interest in the industry. In 2004, Mr. Viger joined Richmond American Homes as a job site construction superintendent in Las Vegas. In 2006, he was sent to Southern California as the director of purchasing in Los Angeles.

By the end of 2006, Mr. Viger had become Richmond American’s division president in Southern Colorado and a year later, the Utah division was added to his already busy workload. Richmond American consolidated the entire Colorado Front Range into one division, and Mr. Viger took on the role of president of what became the company’s largest division in 2009.

Mr. Viger joined a Las Vegas-based privately-owned homebuilder, Harmony Homes, as their regional president. Mr. Viger led the acquisitions and set-up two satellite divisions in Southern California and in Dallas, Texas.

In April 2012, Mr. Viger accepted an exciting opportunity to revitalize the Phoenix market as the president of Richmond American Homes of Arizona. Since rejoining the team, he has assumed the title of regional president, and currently oversees the business for the Phoenix, Tucson, Salt Lake, Jacksonville, Orlando, and South Florida divisions.
