

SPEAKER INFORMATION

Date: Thursday, November 8, 2018
Event: Technical Track
"The Most Monitored Home in America: Plumbing for Innovation and Prosperity"
Time: 9:30 am – 11:30 am

Andrew Whelton PhD
Associate Professor
Purdue University
Phone: 540 230 6069
awhelton@purdue.edu

Andrew Whelton is an associate professor in the Purdue University Lyles School of Civil Engineering and Division of Environmental and Ecological Engineering.

Dr. Whelton is the principal investigator of a national priorities research program established by congress and executed through the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). The program involves Michigan State University, Tulane University, San Jose State University, and Manhattan College and 31 public and private sector partners.